

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

A structure for mounting an engine for a vehicle which includes: a supporting member for supporting the engine on a front side thereof, leaving a space between the engine and the supporting member; and an auxiliary equipment disposed in the space, wherein the supporting member has a strength against a load applied thereto in a longitudinal direction of the vehicle less than that of the auxiliary equipment.